
Find out more about your local Bereavement Information Hub

Bereavement Information Hubs are an informal, friendly place to meet and talk to others who have experienced loss and grief.

Turn the page to find out where your nearest Hub is.

The death of a loved one can turn your life upside down. Everybody's experience of grief can be different and talking about it can help.

Hubs are free to attend and are run by trained volunteers. They are also a great space where you can access information about other services that you may find useful.
